Facts Support Proof Of Need

"In the next school term every grade in the Jefferson elementary school district except the first and eighth will have most classes on double session."

This startling statement was made this week by H. Z. Weibel, superintendent of schools, in a report to state assemblymen Harry Parkman and R. J. Dolwig. Weibel was asked by Roy E. Simpson, state superintendent of schools, to supply facts from the local district which are proof of his contention more state funds are needed for school house construction.

Big Increase

The Jefferson school district has felt a tremendous impact of increased enrollments in the past few years, Weibel explained. This impact has not lessened, and if anything is even more acute now than before.

According to Weibel's report on April 18, 1952, 3,212 children were enrolled in this district. The excess growth this term was 541. About 541 more children will enter kindergarten than the 184 who are leaving the eighth grade. Projecting those figures to the 1952-53 school term, it is estimated the enrollment for April, 1953, will be 4,294 students.

Not Built

"For 1952-53 we are placing 14 classes in rooms not built for school purposes," Weibel said.

The state has provided funds for construction of classrooms. To date, there are 34 classrooms completed and in use. In another year there should be 20 more classrooms completed, largely with state funds. Obviously, according to Weibel, the 20 rooms to be built with state funds will not accommodate the enrollment even though it should remain static.

The present agreement whereby the state will furnish funds for classroom construction to this district expires October 18, 1952. The 34 classrooms already in use plus the 20 classrooms to be built will exhaust all state money allocated to this district. Unless state funds are available for more construction all building must then cease because this district simply cannot finance school housing.

Taxes Used

"All local taxes are being used for operation, and the kind of educational program we are able to afford is at the minimum," Weibel said.

The estimated state apportionment on average daily attendance for 1952-53 is $434,181.99. The estimated revenue from local taxes (with a rate of $1.53 per $100 assessed valuation) is $363,466. This gives an estimated operating budget of $797,647.99. With the estimated enrollment of 4,294 pupils this district will spend approximately $162 per child in average daily attendance.

"The kind of educational program which can be provided with such financing is meager indeed when compared to the per pupil financing in this state in 1939-40, and certainly we were not over-spending for education then," Weibel said.

Big Task

"The state legislature has an enormous task to determine where funds shall be derived and where they shall be allocated. The pressures from various groups for funds to finance their own activities is intense. The objections to paying taxes by other groups is formidable indeed."

COMMISSIONS BEFORE COUNCIL MONDAY NITE

Establishment of the police and planning commissions will be the principal business before the city council at their regular meeting Monday evening.

The meeting gets underway at 8 p. m. in City hall, 75 Wellington avenue. The public is invited to attend.

City Administrator Dan Andersen said he did not know whether the council would introduce members to be chosen for the three man police and five man planning commissions.

Jeff Students Will Receive Diplomas In Friday Ceremony

All Prepare Busily For Special Event

Next Thursday at 8 p. m. 115 teen-age students will reach out their hands and receive rewards for 12 years of scholastic achievements—their diplomas.

The ceremony at Jefferson Union high school, as always will be a big event in the lives of the students, their parents and friends. High school graduation marks the end of youth and the beginning of an adult life. Some will go into the workaday world, others to college for further study and preparation.

The ceremony Thursday evening will begin with two numbers by the high school band, under the direction of Alfred Rannels. The invocation will be given by Rev. William Harberts, pastor of the Grace Presbyterian church.

The salutatory will be given by Judy Woodard, followed by two selections by the girls' chorus, under the direction of Miss Eunice Seaton. Senior class president Donald Wilson will address the assembly, then the boys' octette will present two numbers.

Richard Trantham, president of the high school student body, will deliver his message to the graduates, and the senior girls' nonette will sing. Richard Glayberg has been chosen to deliver the valedictory. His talk will be followed by presentation of awards.

The school band will play, and Stanford Hannah, district superintendent, will make the presentation of the class. Thomas J. Callan, trustee, then will award the diplomas to the graduates.

The program will close with the benediction by Rev. William Stewart and the traditional march, "Pomp and Circumstance." Life memberships in the California Scholarship Federation will be presented to four of the graduates—Judith Woodward, Adele Hansen, Erma Miller and Richard Clayberg.

Members of Chapter 194, California Scholarship Federation, will serve as ushers.

Burglar Ransacks Home, Misses Loot

Miss Dorothy Zorich, 50, owner of the Mission Village bar at 16th and Mission, was returning to her Daly City home at 11 p. m. last Sunday when she was accosted in front of her house by a man wearing a half mask.

The holdup man demanded her house keys, then told her to move on. Mrs. Zorich, terrified, then drove to San Francisco and stayed the night with a relative.

Daly City police weren't notified until the next day. A check of Mrs. Zorich's home at 2 Fliederer drive, revealed the house ransacked—but nothing taken. The burglar had missed a $1,600 fur coat and a $400 wrist watch.

Police Still Seek Volunteer Cops

Here's an opportunity to receive police training without being reduced to flat feet.

The Daly City police department is looking for members for an auxiliary force. Sgt. David Hansen said today. New members will be given special police training which will fit them for duty with the regular force in time of emergency.

Only qualifications for the special training is a man be able bodied and over 21-years-old.

Those accepted for the auxiliary force will receive a two-hour lecture one night a week; two to eight hours of duty in a patrol car; and field training in mob and riot control.

Those interested are asked to sign up at the police station, 75 Wellington avenue.

Callan Upsets Gaggero Bocci Defeats Becker

Drownings Must Stop

In the cold and muddy waters of an artificial lake near Daly City in the Crocker hills, another teen-ager drowned this week. His death was a tragic repetition of the drowning of Larry Swaze three months ago.

Both Larry and Ronald Grimesey, who died last Sunday, were San Francisco high school students. Both were only 17 years old. Neither of them was swimming alone, and in each case their companions tried fruitlessly to save them.

What caused them to drown remains a mystery. A sudden cramp brought on by the frigid water perhaps, or a tangling mesh of underwater weeds. But it is no mystery that both are dead, and no steps have been taken by county officials to insure that others will not follow them.

This small and seemingly innocent lake, scarcely more than a pond, has in the last three months killed twice. It stands now as it did before—an open invitation to a hookey-player or a horseback rider to take an innocent and unsuspecting swim. No fence bars entrance to it and there is not so much as a sign to warn future swimmers that two have already gone into it alive, and been brought out with grappling hooks.

Daly City Fire Chief Elmer Kennedy yesterday told THE RECORD: "We've been up there twice recently with equipment, but it's always much too late to try and revive them. The only thing we've been able to do is to come back and get someone with a boat and dragging equipment. Maybe a good stout sign—one that couldn't be knocked down or defaced—would warn them off."

The lake lies outside the limits of Daly City—local police and firemen who aided in recovering the body acted in an unofficial capacity—and like all unincorporated areas falls directly under the jurisdiction of the County Board of Supervisors.

If any preventive measures are to be taken at this late date, they will have to come from the county. And it is obvious that something must be done. Two drownings in less than 90 days is enough to warrant calling the lake a death-trap. Action, regardless of how slight, should be taken now to prevent the list of victims from growing even larger. Posting the lake is the least that should be done.

In 17 years Ronald Grimesey and Larry Swaze had grown into near-manhood. Seventeen years may seem a long time to a youth, but it is a ridiculously short span when cut off in a few moments by a stupid, tragic and wasteful accident. It is sad enough that thousands of similar young men should die fighting our wars. It is intolerable that lives should be needlessly squandered in accidents such as these.

Second Teen-Ager In Three Months Drowns In Lake Outside Daly City

For the second time in three months a San Francisco high school youth has drowned in a small lake in the Crocker hills above Daly City.

Victim in the latest tragedy is 17-year-old Ronald Grimesey, 29 Blythdale avenue, San Francisco. His death came just short of three months after that of Larry Swaze, another high school youth who drowned in the same lake early in March.

Grimesey died at 3:50 p. m. Sunday after he and a friend interrupted a horseback riding jaunt for a swim. Four other youths were in the riding party, but only Grimesey and Ronald Digno, 16, 536 Leland avenue, San Francisco, swam in the lake.

Digno told investigators from the San Mateo county sheriff's office that Grimesey had twice swum the lake and was on his third trip when, without warning, he sank beneath the surface.

A poor swimmer, Digno nevertheless attempted to rescue the six-foot three-inch, 215-pound Grimesey. But the drowning youth's struggles forced Digno to turn back to shore and, after making another attempt to save his friend he returned and ran for help.

Daly City police and firemen, and officers of the San Mateo county sheriff's department answered the call. The body was re-

Trespassing Riff Delays Extension

Brunswick-Hillside Street Up To Smith

Residents wondering when the connecting street between Brunswick and Hillside boulevard will be completed, had better settle down for a wait.

Already held up for the past three months, the job of cutting through the rock quarry is now being delayed by more litigation between H. H. Smith and the city. Smith, it will be remembered, is Daly City's ex-mayor who is fighting to up the price the city has to pay for cutting the street through his rock quarry. This matter has been appealed to the state supreme court.

In the interim, Smith was granted an injunction by the county superior court because, in cutting the road, contractor A. J. Bracato also broke loose some land on either side. This land, says Smith, "is mine," and the city will have to pay not only for the cut, but for slope rights.

Slope Rights

The city agreed, and a price for the slope rights was reached. However, the injunction still holds. It seems Smith is also displeased because the contractor assertedly parked some equipment on the quarry property. This is trespassing, and the company must pay damages.

Bracato agreed to get together with Smith, and for the past few weeks they have been discussing how much the trespassing is going to cost. Until this problem is settled there will be no work on the big cut.

City Administrator Dan Andersen would make no prediction as to when the job will get underway. Meanwhile, residents on Brunswick can now see through to Hillside boulevard, but it may be some time before they can drive anything but a donkey through the cut.

WORK WINDS UP ON COMMUNITY BUILDING

All current contracts for work on the Community Center will be completed within the next ten days, City Administrator Dan Andersen announced today.

This includes work on the floor in the auditorium (held up by the recent carpenters' strike) and the $25,000 electrical job for the south end of the building.

Approximately $160,000 more is needed to complete the structure which has now cost the city approximately $340,000. A bond election for this work is to be submitted to voters this year.

Record Vote Cast Here

Daly City and county residents turned out in record numbers at the polls Tuesday to score one political upset and decide the fate of 24 candidates seeking public office.

Conceded to be a real table turner (at least in Daly City) was the one-two-three punch Thomas Callan delivered to the hopes of

Trustees Approve New Salary Scale For Teachers Here

New Schedule Gives Substantial Raises

Jefferson elementary school teachers next year will receive substantial raises in salary, to conform with a new salary schedule passed by the board of trustees at a special meeting Monday night.

Two weeks ago the elementary teachers asked the board for a new schedule raising the top minimum from $3375 to $3900, and the top maximum from $4875 to $5700.

Monday night the board, after a careful check on salaries throughout the county, and expressing the hope the highest quality teachers may be obtained, approved the schedule unanimously as presented.

Last week the high school trustees also approved a new salary schedule which raises the top minimum yearly salary from $3,600 to $3800, and the top maximum from $4875 to $5700.

The old minimum salary for elementary teachers with an AB degree and no experience was $2925 a year, with a maximum of $4100 after 14 years. The new schedule calls for a starting minimum of $3500 and a maximum of $4800, with increments of $120 a year, the maximum to be reached in 12 years.

For elementary teachers with an MA degree, the old minimum was $3375, with a maximum of $4875 after 16 years. The new minimum is $3900, the maximum $5700. The maximum scale will be reached after 16 years.

The new schedule seems to represent a large increase, according to H. Z. Weibel, superintendent of schools, but the actual percentage of the total budget to be used for salaries will be less than in the past.

Salaries have accounted for about 75 per cent of the budget in the past, Weibel said. Under the new schedule salaries will account for about 65 per cent of the budget.

CITY STUDIES PLAN FOR CD DIRECTOR

Only important business at a routine city council caucus meeting Monday evening was the suggestion by City Administrator Dan Andersen that an assistant director of civilian defense be appointed here.

Andersen told the council his duties do not give the proper amount of time to work on civilian defense. He said if the local program is ever to succeed, a competent director is needed.

It was suggested a man versed in military affairs, who is retired and can give his full time to the job, be chosen. This work would be voluntary and there would be no pay, Andersen said.

Councilman A. J. Gaggero for a place on the board of supervisors.

Callan, who carried every city but Daly City, clinched the supervisor post with 46,029 votes. Gaggero finished second with 26,993, while the third candidate, Lyman McGuffin, garnered 10,352 votes.

Local politics had expected the race to run into the November finals, but Callan, by winning more than 50 per cent of the vote, was elected Tuesday. It was Gaggero who was generally understood to be "official choice" as the successor of Thomas Hickey, who early this year announced he was withdrawing from the board of supervisors. However, Callan stepped into the picture and, with a platform based on county improvements, won the popular support of the voters.

As expected Gaggero showed his greatest strength in Daly City where he won 3,336 votes to Callan's 2,180. Nevertheless, Callan came through to win in his home first district by 9,716 votes to Gaggero's 8,646. Callan also won a majority in each of the other four districts.

Bocci Scores

In the race for judge of the new municipal court, Charles Becker showed surprising strength, but failed to overcome the popular support of Thomas Bocci. Judge Bocci won the election by a comfortable 3,000 votes. Final tally was Becker, 9,405 and Bocci, 12,256.

Other local candidates entered in the county political ring did not do so well. Thomas Jenkins, Broadmoor attorney; Peter Markovich, local insurance man; and Joseph Gilmore, secretary, were bowled over by Daniel J. Creedon who garnered an impressive number of votes in his try for the state assembly. Creedon, with close to 23,000 votes, had no trouble in defeating his nearest opponent, Markovich, who finished second with nearly 7,000 votes.

Success Here

However, in the assembly race, Jenkins managed to win his home section, Broadmoor; and Markovich came through with the majority of votes in Daly City.

In all county races, the only one to go into November will be the congressional representative. Representing the Democrats will be Harold Taggart who won the right to represent his party with 23,545 votes. J. Arthur Younger with 27,113 votes will carry the banner for the Republicans.

County treasurer A. L. Sagehorn, who was the favorite son of local voters for congress, failed to win the whole county's approval. He came in third out of the running, with 13,099 Republican votes. Sagehorn was put up by (Continued on Page 2)

Tuesday's election goes down in the records as the biggest in the county's history. Close to 72 per cent of the county's registered voters cast a ballot...or 96,733 persons.

It was also a record in Daly City, for of the 8,000 registered voters, 5,500 went to the polls.

"We who are interested in the future welfare of the state through its children appreciate the problems the legislature must face. But we are convinced the finest highways, irrigation systems, flood control projects and other improvements will be a waste of funds unless the hearts and minds of our future citizens are trained to use these facilities properly. They need to have that basic foundation of training which the schools can give if they are to be able to cope with the problems of life which will face them when the older generations have relinquished control," Weibel concluded.

CUB PACK 63 HOLDS ANNUAL OUTING

Cub Pack 63 held their annual picnic at Flood Park in Atherton, Sunday, June 1.

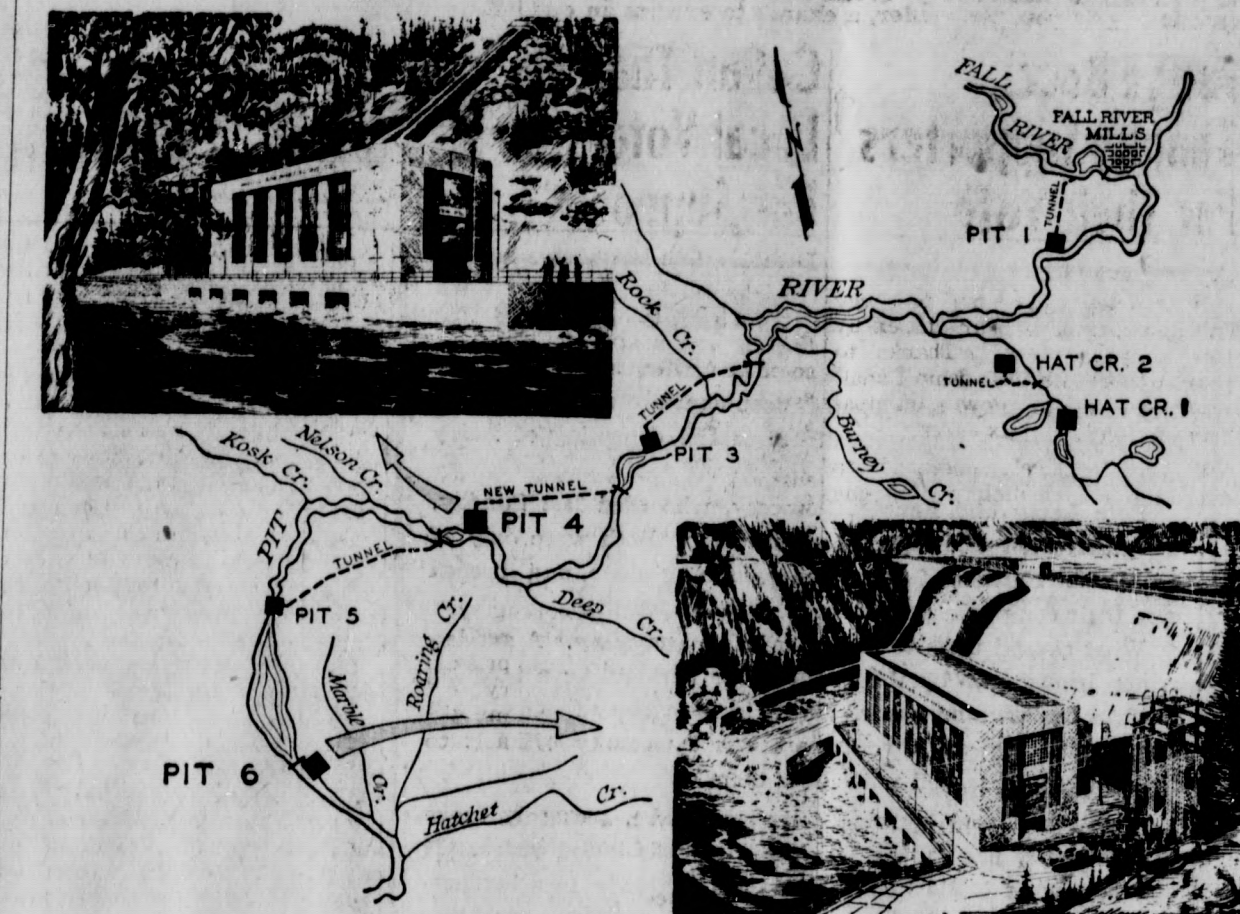

Even though nearly 175 people attended the picnic, the pack had enough hot dogs, punch and ice cream to serve everyone.

While some of the picnicers preferred relaxing in the sun and becoming acquainted with their neighbors, others went swimming or played ball.

Later in the afternoon, everyone watched the cubs participate in their own games, which included a tug-of-war and races of all kinds.

Even though the cubs spent a great deal of energy playing, they still displayed their good scout training by helping to clean the picnic grounds before they left.

It was unanimously agreed that the picnic was a great success, and everyone is looking forward to another get-together soon.

Elementary School Teacher Shortage Is Great Problem

The importance of "Teacher Career Week," which started Monday, June 2, and continues through June 7, was emphasized in a statement made by Dan K. Tilley, chairman of the Professional Improvement Committee of the San Mateo County Teachers Association and 1952-53 president-elect of the county group.

"Shortage of elementary school teachers is one of the greatest problems in education today," Tilley pointed out. "In order to meet the need for teachers to educate the estimated number of students in 1956, one out of every seven 1952 high school graduates must start preparing for elementary teaching."

Tilley also referred to a recent statement made by outgoing County Teachers Association President Victor G. Binsacca, pointing out that San Mateo county's school population of 44,000 is expected to grow to 112,000 in less than ten years.

Teacher Shortage "We must attract more thoroughly qualified young people to the teaching profession," Tilley added, "in order to prevent 'short-changing' our children on their educational rights. A shortage of 22,000 teachers will be found in 1956, unless more students enroll in teacher training courses. And San Mateo county, with one of the fastest growing school populations in the entire state, will be a highly critical area."

Tilley also stated that county association members will be glad to furnish guidance to students wishing to discuss teacher training programs.

1. CAN YOU MAKE CAR TRAVEL FUN FOR CHILDREN?

2. IS YOUR ONE VOTE IMPORTANT?

3. WHAT WAS THE GREATEST RECORDED EXPLOSION?

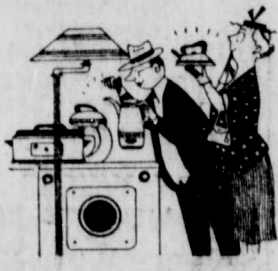

(1.) You can, if you plan properly, advises Elizabeth S. Stokes in "Travel" magazine. She suggests that you plan to stop for a minute or two of relaxation after every 50 miles of driving. A fairly early stop for the night is best, since supper and baths for the children take a good two hours. Soft drinks should be avoided in favor of spring water. Each tot should have a paper bag with his overnight necessities. Games, such as counting license-plate numbers, or the number of cows on each side of the road, help the small fry pass the time.

(2.) Yes, maintains Harold Heller in the June issue of the "Catholic Digest." He points out that Congress saved the nation's army from virtual extinction on August 12, 1941, by extending Selective Service. That decision was by one vote.

Thomas Jefferson was chosen president by one vote over Aaron Burr. The decisive vote was cast by W. C. Claiborne of Tennessee, when the election was thrown into the House of Representatives.

Comments On The Water Bond Issue

While the specific points of the proposed rejuvenation and improvement of the water department remain to be explained, it is generally clear the city will ask residents to approve a bond issue of approximately $500,000 late this summer.

Purpose of raising the money is twofold. First, about one-half will be employed to modernize and purchase new equipment for the present water system west of Junipero Serra boulevard. The other half is to be used for construction of a well and water reservoir in Westlake.

As we understand it, the city hopes to retire these bonds through the regular channels of revenue from the water department. Some believe it will not be necessary to raise water rates, others are more pessimistic.

Necessity of the water department improvements will be recognized by anyone familiar with the present setup. There have been no major improvements in the overall system for a good many years, and at Daly City's present rate of rapid growth a water shortage is possible.

Westlake, as a part of Daly City, must have its own water reservoir to grow. As this section now houses a third of the local population, need for more water in that area is quite evident.

Despite this need, it is going to be a tough job to secure voters' approval . . . at least while the predominant vote is on the east side of Junipero Serra boulevard.

Older residents who have already paid for the Daly City water system fail to see why they should subsidize the Westlake project. They feel this should be done by a special assessment of the newer area.

And in a way they are quite right; for if the Westlake water system is to mean higher water rates (and this is, of course, an assumption) it seems only right that only those directly benefiting should pay.

Which leads us to believe that political reality is needed here. If the proposed water bond issue is to pass, one of three things is necessary.

1. Residents in Westlake and of Daly City must be convinced all will share equally in the improvements. This must be done with facts, not verbiage.

2. The bond issue must be divided into two sections, with special districts set up in the new and old areas of Daly City, so each is "taxed" according to benefits received.

3. Last, and ideally, if the improvements are not going to mean a raise in water rates or taxes, it will be a simple matter to pass the measure. However, pity the poor politico who should make such a promise and fail to come through.

In conclusion, it is evident we need more facts and, until The Record receives those facts, we reserve any comment as to the advisability of passing or declining the city's $500,000 offer to improve the water department.

Teachers Are Not Underpaid

Last week the teachers in the Jefferson high school district received substantial wage raises. Elementary teachers also have received pay hikes.

Teachers—who 12 years ago put on a tremendous drive for public recognition and increase in the general salary schedule—no longer are underpaid. At that time they had justification. Since that period salaries have consistently gone up, especially in California. This state now pays higher average salaries for teachers than any other state in the nation, with New York second.

Just as an example, under the new schedule in Daly City, the young teacher just out of college, and with a general secondary credential, receives $3,600 a year. This breaks down to $300 a month for 12 months. However, since the average teacher works about eight months a year, counting summer vacations and other holidays, this figure actually represents a salary of $450 a month. Even leaving out all vacations and holidays, and basing the schedule on a straight nine months, this starting salary for a young man or woman straight out of college is $400 a month.

We don't say the teachers do not deserve these salaries. But, we certainly do say they are not underpaid. The average college graduate after four or five years spent getting his degree, does not start out earning more than $400 a month.

The reason teachers are getting these salaries is a simple one. The law of supply and demand is in operation. California, with its terrific post-war growth, is flooding the lower grades with children. Facilities are being taxed to capacity. There is still a shortage of teachers. Parents understandably want the best for their children. School boards have to bid for the good educators in a competitive way. Therefore, they are forced to pay the asking price.

But, indications are the teachers have nearly reached their limit, as far as salaries are concerned. We read recently that several systems in eastern states have been forced to cut salaries. This may merely be the first break in the dike. Not that we predict an immediate depression, but such leveling processes usually start in the east and work their way towards this coast, taking about a year.

During the fiscal year 1950-51, California spent a staggering $502,944,979 to educate our children. Of this amount, 64 per cent went for instruction—with 57 per cent of the total for teachers' salaries. In hard cash, this means we paid our teachers $287,553,337—and that's a lot of money.

We believe the teachers in California are earning their salaries. However, we'd like to deliver a word of caution.

Let's not get greedy.

No Place For Push Buttons

Push buttons are great things or gadgets such as toasters, light switches and atom bombs; but wholly out of place in Daly City's signal system.

As any maddened pedestrian realizes, it is necessary to push a button in order to get the light to shift from red to green. The trouble is too many of those on foot still are not hep to this simple trick. Too many poor sloggers sluggishly stand on the street curb waiting for the light that never turns anything but red.

Several officers spend more than several hours each week pushing the buttons for the pedestrians.

But it appears to be all in vain . . . some people just won't learn.

All of which reduces us to a simple solution. We need to eliminate the push buttons on the signals. This can be done by inserting automatic timers which take care of turning the lights red and green without benefit of a thumb.

A simple solution indeed . . . but we wonder how long it will take the state department of highways to catch on. And meanwhile the pedestrians continue to wait and wait.

"No Parking" Needed For All Of Knowles Ave.

Rapidly becoming one of the more dangerous streets in Daly City is Knowles avenue. This is due for the most part in failure to take proper parking precautions along Knowles.

The main street between Daly City's "top of the hill" and Westlake usually has cars parked on both sides. As it is a relatively narrow thoroughfare, it becomes impossible for two cars to pass one another safely.

The passing problem is especially true at the Knowles-Mission intersection. While the city has set off about 50 feet of Knowles as a no-parking zone, this has not proven to be enough to avoid traffic jams. Parked cars half way down the block interfere with cars going either east or west.

What is needed, we believe, is a no parking zone for the entire length of Knowles during the peak hours. This would work no hardship on motorists, and would save much confusion and possible accidents.

We understand the city, with the aid of the state, is planning to widen Knowles. This is most necessary, and will relieve the present congestion problem. However, until then, we suggest the no parking zone during the evening and morning rush hours.

County Property Tax Dollar Goes To Many Places, Association Says

The property tax dollar in San Mateo county for 1951-52 is divided 25 cents for general county purposes, 19 cents for municipal governments, 48 cents for school district purposes, and 8 cents for special districts, California Taxpayers' association said today. Total levy on property in the county for the current year 1951-52 was $20,159,148.

For 1942-43, the property tax dollar in the county was divided 30 cents for the county government, 27 cents for the cities in the county, 38 cents for the school districts, and 5 cents for special districts. Property tax levy in the county for 1942-43 totalled $4,825,075.

Statewide, the $853,592,808 property tax bill for 1951-52 was the place to start demanding tax

"Local government spending programs—budgets of counties, cities, school districts, and special districts—which are being decided in June, July, and early August, will determine the size of the property tax bill for 1952-53," the Taxpayers' association pointed out.

Markovich Thanks Friends For Their Support

To The Voters:

I wish to extend my most sincere thanks to my many friends for the wonderful support they gave me at the June 3rd election.

Although I ran second in a campaign of four it was most gratifying, particularly, to know the vote registered was of true friendship and not any compiled by the efforts of any given political faction.

I do hope that someday I may have the pleasure of meeting each and every one who voted for me, so that I may thank them personally.

To THE RECORD many thanks. Their cooperation was appreciated.

Peter Markovich

Jenkins Thanks Voters For Giving Him Their Support

To Daly City-Colma Residents:

My sincere thanks to the voters of the Daly City-Colma area who cast a vote for me in the recent election.

I am a loser in one sense, but in another sense I have gained something even more precious to me than public office . . . friendship. During my campaign for assemblyman I had the unexcelled opportunity to meet new county residents, many of whom I can call my friends.

It has been my privilege to participate in the democratic process of electing public officials. It is a privilege which I do not treat lightly, and one of which I am indeed proud.

I pledge to support the new assemblymen and other state and county officials the public has seen fit to elect to office.

Thanks to my friends and supporters for giving me the opportunity to express my views and opinions. I am grateful to each and every family.

Sincerely yours,
Thomas Jenkins

Callan Thanks Local Voters For Support

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Daly City and Colma:

I wish to thank you, my many friends and supporters, who have seen fit to elect me as their representative on the county board of supervisors.

During my term as your supervisor I shall endeavor to work with the other members of the board to insure better government and intelligent, progressive county growth.

It is indeed encouraging to know so many county residents believe in me and my program. I promise each and everyone of you that I will devote my time and effort to make this a county of which we will all be proud to call home.

Again, my heartfelt thanks to you and your family for your support.

Judge Becker Grateful For Large Support

Taggart Thanks Friends For Their Support

Harold F. Taggart, winner of the Democratic nomination for Congress from San Mateo county, today thanked his many friends who supported him.

"As one who is not a professional politician," stated Taggart, "it is indeed gratifying to find that people will still vote for a candidate who knows their problems and who wishes sincerely to represent all of them in Washington."

He expressed his appreciation of the clean campaign conducted by Al Sagehorn, his manager, Col. Enoch Richardson, and John McKenna.

In an interview with Bob Letts last night over KNBC from San Francisco, Taggart pointed out that he believed he was the only Congressional candidate qualified to represent San Mateo's needs in the House of Representatives, owing to his 30 years of residence here and his participation in community activities, which have made him profoundly aware of the county's problems.

Roy Seagraves, Taggart's campaign manager, declared that the campaign to elect Taggart in November was starting today. "We do not intend to lose a single moment," he announced, "in our efforts to elect a representative to Congress of whom we shall all be proud."

"That's right," said the proprietor. "A great act, ain't it?"

"Is that so?" said the proprietor. "Maybe you'd like to write something about Rusty? Hey, Rusty, this is a writer. Show him your scrap book, will you?"

Rusty swiveled his head and looked at me with blank, empty eyes. Then he snapped out of his act and said, "Sure. They're in the back."

He walked swiftly toward the back of the store, the ease and grace of his movements coming as a surprise. Leo and I followed

Bill Katz . . .

FROM A CORNER

Once knew a man by name of Oswald. Which goes to prove there is a lot in a name, and parents should be careful about pinning handles on unsuspecting babies.

Most virile Americans have experience in naming children. Usually experience is synonymous with wisdom. This is not the case in selection of names. Parents have an affinity for attaching some peculiar titles to their children.

It all starts five minutes after the Mrs. has giggled the news into Dad's ear. After the old man has been swept up off the floor, the merry-go-round of selecting a name for the new citizen begins.

Common Names

The first round is devoted to relatively common appellations such as Bill, George, Mary, Mike or Jane. But being such ordinary titles, these are soon dumped for something more apropro to the child's genius.

Many years ago pop read a novel, so he thinks a name like an author such as Hugo, Oscar or Edith is in order. The old lady overrules him for something with more tone and rhythm such as Harpetoon, Heinrich or Naaman. But as neither parent can pronounce any of these, they are soon discarded.

Mercenary

Some take a purely mercenary view of the whole process and settle for the boss's name. Children named after employers end up with items like Jerome, Chester or Homer. They are generally disliked in school and grow up to be successful leaders of men.

Then there is the old fashioned school where any name with the ring of the 18th century is in order. Hence, mother is soon screaming "don't" at Abigail, Bertha, Faith or Ida. Most boys escape this misfortune.

Lacking imagination, some parents turn to a handy book of names seeking something with a hidden meaning. It seems all names have meaning. The trouble is the child named Robert, which stands for "bright in fame" turns out to be a dud in a button assembly factory. Bernard who is supposed to be as "bold as a bear" winds up cringing before his diminutive wife. Celestine, with a temper like unleashed lightning, should be "heavenly."

Relatives

Discouraged of ever settling on a good name, the parents turn to the relatives for help. This is disastrous. Every uncle and aunt, modest though they be, are eager to saddle the infant with their respective names . . . names which they are sure ring with truth and goodwill. That is how Dedamia and Hortense were labelled.

All of which leads to the conclusion parents should forget the whole thing and let the kid pick his own key to destiny. It doesn't make any difference as children have a way of being simply called "Hey, you" or other more descriptive, but not printable, names.

And when the infant slips into the social security paying class he can pick his own descriptive term. Of course this might lead to a million simple, direct names; but it would save the child a lot of embarrassment.

Stan Bibbero . . .

BIBBERO'S BABLE

For the past couple of weeks I have been reading, along with the rest of the nation, about the now notorious "pantie raids," conducted by our male university students throughout the country.

In case anyone possibly could have missed this epoch in news events, college students have been raiding women's dormitories and sorority houses and absconding with numerous "unmentionables."

Some of these raids have bordered on riots, with police intervention necessary to handle the boisterous young men and the properly irate females.

The entire thing has been aired thoroughly in the press—in fact a spread in "Life" magazine helped pass a single episode into a nation-wide fad.

Many explanations have been given. Learned professors have mumbled about Freudian impulses. Others have laughed and called it a harmless college prank—showing the spirit of our college youth. College presidents have been shocked and indignant. One high school teacher called it a shameful "sensual" outbreak, that should be squelched immediately. That same teacher not so many years ago attained national fame by swallowing a numerous quantity of live goldfish.

Nothing much has been said about the possible reaction from the rest of the world. I'm afraid foreign peoples do not understand student life in America, at its best. In Europe not too many can afford a college education. Those that can go there for one purpose—to study, learn and obtain a degree. The curriculum is much tougher, and the student life revolves around the classroom.

Student outbreaks and riots, as a matter of fact, are not particularly uncommon in other countries. However, they are usually political in nature—and sometimes quite serious. Foreign students take their politics hard.

I have been trying to imagine what an earnest young student in western Germany would think of the "pantie raids" after reading about them in the newspaper. A young student, probably living on the income an indulgent American parent would give his high-school-age son for spending money, trying desperately to aid in the rebuilding of his shattered country.

He probably just simply couldn't understand the situation at all. You can hardly blame him. In his position, I'm sure I wouldn't understand it, either.

However, remembering back to the days of the aforesaid goldfish eaters, flagpole sitters, marathon dancers, et al, these young students for the most part seem to have turned out fairly well.

Americans are most certainly a curious people. Foreigners can't understand us, and give us respect only grudgingly. But, in the end, they give it. And when the blue chips are on the table we usually manage to come up with the fourth ace.

Ridgely Cummings . . .

HOLLYWOOD

It was a salubrious evening and Hollywood Boulevard, its sprinkling of grime half-concealed by garish architecture and gaudy lights, was crowded with shoppers, movie goers and strollers. In front of a clothing store near the Egyptian Theatre a throng of casually dressed men and women were silhouetted against neon tubes.

As we approached the crowd my companion, a studio worker named Leo, said, "Hey, wait a minute. Here's a mechanical man. Let's watch him."

A slender figure in well-fitted evening clothes was standing rigidly at the entrance of the store. His thin face was painted and powdered under his top hat. He had a pencil mustache, a prominent nose and large, unblinking eyes outlined in black.

For long moments he didn't move a muscle, didn't twitch an eye-lash, just stood there like a clothing store dummy. Latecomers asked each other, "Is he really alive?"

Then he started to walk with jerky, mechanical movements, like a toy run by a clockwork mechanism. There was something touching and pathetic in his performance, something of the same appeal that marked Charlie Chaplin twenty years ago.

We watched him click and jerk his way back and forth on the sidewalk. When the crowd had grown numerous he walked slowly into the store. A number of people followed him.

"That reminds me," said Leo. "I ought to buy a sport shirt."

We went in. The mechanical man walked up and down the aisle but Leo and I soon forgot him, engrossed in the selection of a shirt sufficiently glittering for his taste. As he completed his purchase the proprietor came over to see if he could sell me something.

"Is that the same chap Paul Coates wrote a feature story about?" I asked him, pointing to the mechanical man.

"That's right," said the proprietor. "A great act, ain't it?"

"Very interesting," I agreed. "He's a writer," Leo said, indicating me to the proprietor.

"Is that so?" said the proprietor. "Maybe you'd like to write something about Rusty? Hey, Rusty, this is a writer. Show him your scrap book, will you?"

him. He dug out two scrapbooks, filled mostly with tiny, one-paragraph stories and glossy, publicity-size photographs showing him in costume, surrounded by curious crowds. They had been taken in various small towns across the country.

Rusty took off his hat, revealing tight blond curls and a youthful face under the makeup. He lit a cigarette and grimaced, twitching his nose.

"Gee, that looks like Charlie Chaplin," Leo said to him.

"Yeah, I'm doin' a switch on Chaplin," Rusty replied. "Look, here's how Chaplin works. Relaxed, see?" He went through the side-shuffle, cigarette-tossing, mouth-twisting grimace that was Chaplin's trademark.

"Me, I'm different. I don't imitate nobody. I do a similar character only I do it stiffer. See?" He went into his own act again.

"Are you going to write him up?" asked Leo. "It's a great story. Ask him some questions. How much do you weigh?"

"A hundred and twenty," said Rusty.

"Just Chaplin's size," said Leo. "Why don't you become a jockey?"

"I don't want to be a jockey. I want to be an actor."

"You could," said Leo enthusiastically. "You got what it takes. You ought to go out to Ciro's or the Mocambo and put on your act where the agents and producers can see you."

"Oh yeah? They'd lock me up. You know what the headlines would be? Iron Man In Clink."

Leo laughed and turned to me. "Did you get that crack? Write it down. Iron Man In Clink. This boy's sharp."

"What kind of things do you write?" Rusty asked.

"Pieces mostly about the struggles in Hollywood. It comes out in a column called 'Stardust and Doughnuts.'"

"That's for me," said Rusty. "I'm a struggler. How old do you think I am?"

"I think Coates said you were 19."

"That was a couple months ago. I'm twenty now. I was born April 8, 1932. In Rochester, New York."

across the country. I came out here to get in the movies but I haven't made it yet. My girl friend, she's a film cutter, she didn't like the write-up Paul Coates gave me. Not dignified enough, she says. She won't even watch him on television any more. He shouldn't have put in that stuff about the orphanage."

"I thought it was a good, sympathetic article. What would you want him to say?"

"Say I went to the Echo Hills Military Academy in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y."

I looked at the clipping again, then said: "Coates called it the Dobbs Ferry School for Boys."

"Yeah, that was its name too but military academy sounds better. I won first prize there in dramatics and as an electrician."

"That's a good combination," said Leo. "The highbrow and the practical. How old were you when you left the school?"

Ridgley Cummings

As we walked away Leo said: "Now there's a challenge to a writer. A good writer could make a masterpiece out of that. You could put everything into it—sympathy, tragedy, frustration, hope, everything." "Ummm," I said. "Can you do it?" Leo persisted. "How will you handle it?" "I don't know," I replied. "I'll probably just tell the truth straightaway, like I usually do." And that's what I have done. I wish it had been a masterpiece.

VFW Thanks All Who Made Big Success Of Drive

Lake Merced Post 9921, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Auxiliary, have announced their recent Buddy Poppy drive was a complete success.

This was possible, according to officials, only through the co-operation and help of local merchants who allowed displays to be placed in their windows, the local residents who so generously donated for the poppies, and THE RECORD for bringing the worthy cause before the public.

Commander Edward Diaz, of the Lake Merced Post, added his thanks to those of the poppy chairman, Joe Monks, and the Auxiliary chairman, Mrs. Anita Woods. The drive was a 100 per cent success, and thus enables the VFW to carry on its program of help to veterans, families of veterans, and veterans' orphans, as well as those men and women still in veterans hospitals.

Aviation Training Is Possible For Recruits In Navy

The Navy assures qualified high school graduates of a course in one of its many vocational schools upon completion of their basic recruit training. In addition to basic submarine and airman schools there are more than 30 other schools available.

Suppose you're interested in aviation. If you're a high school graduate it's simple. All you do to get into naval aviation is to walk into your navy recruiting station and tell them that you want to go to aviation fundamentals school. Since only the best men get chosen you will then be given various tests to find out if you're one of the best. If you pass these tests and are between 17 and under 31 years old you will be sent to the Navy's Aviation Fundamentals school as soon as you finish recruit training.

If you make good in fundamentals school the field opens up for you and you get an early start into the "air age." You'll begin to specialize. For instance, there's the aviation machinist's mate school in which you will first learn the overall principles and practices of all phases of aviation engines.

But naval aviation isn't exclusively for high school graduates. It doesn't make any difference how much education you've had—if you can pass the tests you can make the grade.

SHOPPING BLOCK

News of Your Local Businesses and Business Men

Never underestimate the power of a DOLLAR to buy what you need in the way of household furnishings—even in these days of inflated prices and DE-flated pocketbooks! SERRA FURNITURE STORE owner, Joe Figueras, is having a STORE WIDE SALE with values unheard of in this area—values that will mean money in YOUR pocket! EVERYTHING, and there is no catch to that "everything," is marked way down—and every bit of merchandise is QUALITY merchandise! Especially appealing to me were the wonderful buys in mattresses (and I have had two put away and their total cost is just about what I would ordinarily have to pay for one)—Orthopedic mattresses, too, with a ten year factory guarantee! Also heartwarming is the news that you need NOTHING DOWN on any appliance (Joe carries brands such as G.E., Thor, etc.)—and only ten per cent down on furniture!

See SERRA FURNITURE'S full page ad in THE SHOPPING NEWS for a more complete list of these wonderful items—and take it from me, as an eye witness, that each and every one of them is completely up to "snuff"!!!!

THE DALY CITY HARDWARE, on Top of the Hill, is not only boosting foreign trade by selling those new "Peacock" brooms imported from Italy, but is also boosting the housewife's morale by peddling a broom that really sweeps up DUST—as well as dirt! Made from some exotic African reed, these brooms are soft as . . . Peacock feathers . . . but strong and sturdy enough to clean that basement cement dust up in a flash—or make under-the-bed dust disappear without the need of a vacuum! Only $2.95—and a bargain!

And, speaking of Hardware stores—that much-advertised "DESCOWARE" special of one ¾-quart saucepan for a dollar is available at your LOCAL Descoware dealers. Two such dealers are SHANNON'S HARDWARE and DALY CITY HARDWARE—both on Top of the Hill!

Anyone interested in seeing a Chinchilla in the flesh rather than in a coat, may do so by visiting the "INTERSTATE CHINCHILLA COOPERATIVE" at 2155 Junipero Serra Blvd. They have breeding stock on display—and the display rooms are something for Daly City to be proud of, but really!

If you don't care about chinchillas—stop off in this location anyway! Right in a line you'll find some mighty interesting looking—and eating.

For looking (or practically drooling, as I did), just walk through LISSAUER'S FURNITURE STORE. . . . The merchandise is comparable to Sloane's for quality and high style, the atmosphere is soothing and the owner and employees completely charming! Bargains here are the modern prints and watercolors with many marked down from the thirty and forty-dollar price range to about $17.50, etc! Also available are unframed modern prints, purchased in New York, for from 60c and up, naturally. . . . "LISSAUERS, for modern" is the store's slogan—and after a tour through the store you'll be saying "LISSAUER'S, for MY modern!" The address? 2147 Junipero Serra Blvd.

Now, for the eating part of this stretch of Daly City, just stroll up to 2155 Junipero Serra Blvd. and enter Mr. Denny's ICE CREAM LAND where cones are free to human beings who have not reached their seventh birthday . . . and Korean combat servicemen or women can fill up on free sundaes. . . . This is a real "fun" store—and the ice cream is GOOD!

Now is the season to buy cut flowers for your home—and I say that not just to boost business for local florists, but because now is the time when the Sweet William blooms so brilliantly—and sells for only 35c a bunch. Marguerites in pure white and deep yellow will now sunshine your rooms for as long as ten days for the ridiculous price of 20c per bunch . . . and Esther Reed daisies, looking like feather powder puffs (either in their natural white—or dyed different colors) will give you at least ten days of long-stemmed loveliness for 50c per bunch!

Carol Bignotti, of TANFORAN FLORIST, gives me this information which should please women who like something just a little different in the way of flowers for home or corsages. . . . The "Star of Bethlehem"—they're white, with black centers, will last for ten days in a corsage. And, since they come 8 or 10 to a stalk, they are wonderful to mix with colored flowers for a house bouquet! Thanks, Carol!

Executive Unit Of James Snell PTA Meets Last Week

New Officers Take Office At Session

The executive board of the James L. Snell Parent-Teacher Association met Wednesday evening, May 28, at the Broadmoor Community Center on White street, with new unit president, Mrs. Larry Green, presiding. This was the first meeting of the new officers and chairmen, and was widened to include outgoing staff, in order to give the new board an opportunity to ask any questions they may have had about their new office, and to familiarize themselves with the duties and problems ahead.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Raymond H. Duste, new hospitality chairman, assisted by Mesdames Robert Shreve and George Brandt, who served refreshments of coffee and cupcakes.

One of the first topics on the agenda was a discussion of the May Day Festival booth, which the unit shared with the Crocker PTA in distributing coffee and doughnuts and soft drinks. The new recreation chairman, Mrs. Betty Hart, stated that the combined booth affair was a success, and that both units will realize a profit.

Also passed was a motion that the unit purchase ice cream for the children's vacation parties, to be held during luncheon, June 12.

It was reported that well over 100 children were registered in kindergarten in the Garden Village School for the fall term, last May 27, and the hospitality committee was congratulated for its part in welcoming each new mother and child with coffee and cookies, and especially for the rose presented to each mother together with a welcoming letter from the president, Mrs. Larry Green. Delighted comments of surprise and approval were heard on all sides, attesting to the success of the idea.

Final plans were made for the June general meeting, and announcement was made that the new juvenile protection chairman, Broadmoor Police Chief Paul Schmidt, will present the speaker for the evening, who will discuss narcotics. The board also announced that the June 11 meeting will be Father's Night, and it is especially hoped to have a good turnout of fathers in the audience on their one annual night.

Chief Schmidt, active in forming the Broadmoor Boys Club, also said he believed this particular threat to our children to be of utmost concern to every parent, and he joined with unit president, Mrs. Larry Green, in hoping to have a representative from every home in our area to hear Lt. Jensen speak.

Jeffs Drop First One

Locals Must Win Next Two Games To Retain Their Championship

Friday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock Jefferson and San Mateo met on the latter's diamond for game number two in the Peninsula Athletic League championship finals. The Jeffs have already lost the opener so it's a case of win Friday or else.

Played at Jefferson, the first game of the best-two-out-of-three series found the Jeffs losing 5-3 to San Mateo in the dragged-out tilt that was heavily laden with errors.

Joe Lewkowitz — who with catcher Bryan McMahon made up the Jeff representation on the All PAL 1952 team—held to the mound throughout the game, walking one and fanning five.

Jeff runs came from Don Delbon, nominally a pitcher who was occupying the right field position during the game, left fielder Izzy Galente and second baseman Dick Trantham.

Delbon also starred in the outstanding field play of the day in the seventh frame. With bases loaded, he made a one-handed, over the shoulder catch while on a dead run for the third out. The catch undoubtedly saved the score from ending 9-3.

Galente and Delbon scored in the fourth, one on a walk and one on a steal. Mighty mite Trantham tied the score at three-all in the sixth when, after hitting himself a single, he was given the go sign by a wild throw from San Mateo's Bohn. The ball landed in the Jeff dugout.

The game finally wound up in the eighth when Rosa erred on a single by Dick Matlock, San Mateo hurler. Matlock, incidentally, had as bad a day as Lewkowitz, seven whiffs and seven walks. Both teams picked up plenty of errors, seven for San Mateo and one less for the Jeffs.

Tomorrow's game finds the Jeffs in the same behind-the-eight-ball spot as last week, when they played Palo Alto in the semifinals. That time they went into the second game of the series with a loss behind them, then calmly won two in a row to earn the right to defend their crown against the Mateans in the finals.

In the third and deciding game of the semi-windup, held last Friday, they started right out in inning number one with three runs, and followed up with two more in the third frame.

Don Delbon led off for the Jeffs, but was relieved in the fifth by Lewkowitz. Paly tried a rally in the mid-innings, but in the seventh, the Jeffs went on to garner a winning total.

The present finals series is an exact repetition of last year, when Jefferson and San Mateo met for the crown, and Jefferson, of course, won. Eddie Cereghino was on the mound for the Jeffs then, and led them to a first game win. The second game they dropped, but came back to take the last.

That the Jeffs are once again battling it out is a sufficient answer to those who maintained that Cereghino was a one-man team, and the locals would be crippled without him.

Even without their all-time, outstanding hurler, Coach Clarence Lair's Jefferson high school Indians can still play top-caliber ball. Whether that will be enough is a question that tomorrow's game will answer.

FOURTEEN GENUINE GOLD trophies are enough to make anyone smile. And the gentlemen above, (l. to r.) Fred Federighi, Harry Krohn and Vince Merlo, have a right to smile. The trophies are in recognition of the Vince and Fred nine's taking second in San Francisco Recreation Department's Winter AA baseball league. The sponsors and manager feel that's good enough to warrant a grin any day.

THIS IS THE SORT of thing that gladdens a sports editor's heart. The young lady is Miss Mildred Mersich of 1825 Moraga street, San Francisco. She won the title of Miss California in the recent contest sponsored by the National Foundation for Boys, and will try for the Miss California crown tomorrow, Friday, at Santa Cruz. And why is her gorgeous face gracing our sports page? Well, she's the niece of Michael Orlich, head coach at Jefferson High. Good enough!

TOM BROWN WINS MARIN NET CROWN

Tom Brown just keeps rolling along.

After losing out to defending champion Herb Flam in the semifinals of the recent state tennis tourney at Berkeley, Daly City lawyer-racqueteer Tom Brown wandered over to the Marin Open championship last weekend and took top spot in the men's singles.

Reportedly playing his best game of tennis since being a member of the 1950 Davis Cup team, Brown knocked over Nick Carter of San Francisco 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 for the crown.

In the men's doubles, Brown teamed with Gil Shea for a chance at a twin title, but the duo lost 7-5, 6-2 to Ellis Slack and Ralph Gish.

The Marin crown makes it nearly half a dozen for Brown in recent local tournaments. He started the comeback trail in March, beating top-flight players Art Larsen (who took the state championship) and Ted Schroeder at the La Jolla meet. Then he went on to win the Bay Counties, Burlingame, Pebble Beach and other tourneys.

The Marin win makes it obvious that his defeat by Flam in the state championship was merely a temporary setback.

Flying Fish Ferried To Furnish Fishermen Fun

The longest aerial ferry trip for fish has just been completed by the California Department of Fish and Game with the planting of 29,999 smallmouth black bass in the Colorado river.

The well-traveled bass fry made the 500-mile trip from the Central Valley hatchery, near Sacramento, to Blythe in the department's twin-engine airplane. Jeep and station wagon from airport to river waters completed the itinerary.

Earl Leitritz, chief of the inland fisheries branch, reported that the unique planting operation was accomplished in two plane trips. The first load of 20,000 fish was carried in a dozen specially-aerated cans. There were no appreciable fish losses en route, Leitritz said.

The fish were planted in the Colorado near Blythe, the Bass Lake arm and near Palo Verde valley. They should provide excellent angling sport within a few years, Leitritz believes.

Sartomen Score Double Win Here

Not content with defeating one opponent per week in local bush league baseball, Sarto AC took on two antagonists last weekend and twice came away the victors.

First game found them up against the Guadalupe Natives, whom they downed 9-1 with Tito Sarto throwing a two-hit ball game. In the second tilt they clashed with Johnny's Billiards, coming away winner by a score of 8-5.

Moundsman Sarto, fresh from USF baseball and stiff intercollegiate competition, threw the best game of his AC career in the Guadalupe game, fanning five of the opponents in addition to granting only two hits.

With the aid of his heavy-hitting teammates, young Sarto had the game virtually on ice by the second inning. By the end of that frame the locals had totted up six runs of their final nine.

Top sluggers for the Sarto club were Tom O'Hara, Len Karp and dependable Heine Schuback. Karp leaves the club tomorrow, Friday, to play pro ball.

On the basepaths, the Sartomen did as well as at the plate and on the mound. They grabbed off six stolen sacks.

The game with Johnny's Billiards was not quite as easy, according to Sarto manager Parker Garner. The Billiardmen came up from behind in the fifth inning to score four runs and almost tie the ball game.

Sarto hurler Don Deluzzio took the mound for the Sarto club and stuck till the almost-disastrous fifth frame. Then Tito Sarto took over, holding the line until the seventh when he was relieved by Bill Rainey, who wound it up.

No game is scheduled for the Sartomen this Sunday. Ace hurler Tito Sarto will graduate from USF and his teammates plan to attend rather than play ball.

Fisherman Catches Far-Traveled Shark

The far-flung traveling habits of Pacific coast dogfish sharks are coming to light—thanks to the tag returns made by two fishermen—one in California, the other in Japan.

Fisherman Orville Wallace, 1032 El Camino Real, Redwood City, received an official commendation card from the California Department of Fish and Game for the return of a tag taken from a dogfish shark he caught recently near Half Moon Bay. It had been caught, tagged and released by the State of Washington in 1944, off Vancouver Island, B. C.

The 30-inch beast had grown nearly six inches and traveled an estimated 900 miles before it was taken by Wallace.

Another dogfish shark, tagged in Washington more than seven years ago was recovered recently by a fisherman at northern Honshu Island, Japan, after traveling a minimum of 5,000 miles.

Report On Cancer Drive Read At Club Meeting

The regular meeting of the Women's Civic Club was held at the home of Celia Gardella May 28.

Julia Byrne, Cancer chairman, reported that Daly City was 210 per cent over its Cancer quota, thus making this city among the top five in the county.

Instead of a White Elephant, each member brought a small package which is to be sent to a boy overseas.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Rose Watson on June 26.

Jeff Golfers Set For PAL Finals Tomorrow

With the best golfer in the PAL swinging for them, Coach John Matthews' Jeff links team goes into the league finals tomorrow, Friday, with a good chance to cop the crown.

Heavyweight on the local squad is John Gertsen, 15-year-old son of the San Francisco Country club pro, and a below par golfer. In his second year at Jefferson, Gertsen was on last year's fifth place team but was personally ranked best in the league.

Backing him up at the finals, which will begin at 1 p.m. at the Peninsula Country club in San Mateo, are teammates Bob Dowdle, Joe Galente, Chuck Blackburn, and Gary Gally.

Also ready, willing and able to go in their swinging should the opportunity present itself are Brian Van Paul, John Devolder, Jim Courts and Dick Cryer.

The Jeff pellet-whackers, whose home course is the Lake Merced links, have come through the season thus far with a much-better-than-average record. Only twice have they failed to win in competition. Once to St. Ignatius, San Francisco city champs, and once to Burlingame, defending their PAL title.

Matthews, however, is not overly inclined to optimism about his boy's chances. Preferring to be pleased rather than disappointed, he gives the Jeffs a chance for fourth spot, with Burlingame, Sequoia, and Paly over them. He feels certain of downing San Mateo and Lincoln of San Jose.

Burlingame, with a team of all-round excellence, is generally favored to retain its crown. No golfer in the PAL, though, is calling it quits until the final scoring is made.

Each school will enter five of its best men in the big push. In the final tally, lowest total of the four best scores will win.

Slate Free Fishing Trips For Small-Fry

A Daly City youngster who plays his cards right can get in two free days of fishing at Lake Merced this month, expenses, tackle and even some chow furnished.

Hosts for the occasions will be the Daly City-Colma Lions Club and the Daly City Fire department. All they ask is that prospective anglers sign up.

The Lions club-sponsored day will be June 16, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Instead of holding their regular Wednesday meeting, the Lions will split into groups, pick the fishermen up, and transport them to the lake.

A sign-up sheet will be at every playground in the Daly City area. Attending kids are asked to bring their own sandwiches, but the Lions will furnish other refreshments and all tackle.

This is another of the Lions many youth benefit programs offered throughout the year.

The fire department-sponsored fishing day was slated at the June 3 meeting of the Daly City Fire department. Jim Fox of the Daly City Rod and Gun club presented a talk on the work being done by his organization and the recreational facilities offered at Lake Merced.

The talk was followed by pictures showing scenes of Lake Merced and improvements being made to better the lake's fishing accommodations.

Then plans were laid for a day of fishing at the lake for youngsters up to the age of 14 years, to be conducted by the fire department.

Chief J. E. Kennedy appointed A. J. Bodien, charter member of both the fire department and the rod and gun club, as chairman for the day. Ed Goldkuhl, Al Sundstrom and George De Bono will work with the chairman.

The fishing trip will be held June 26, and all equipment, transportation and supervision will be furnished. Plans are to leave the fire house at 8 a.m. and return at 3 p.m.

Those wishing to participate may sign up any time between now and the day of the trip at the Company No. 2 fire house, corner of Santa Barbara and Park avenues.

SMILE REAL PRETTY, GENTLEMEN, for you've just finished second in the San Francisco Recreation Department's Double "A" Winter league. After all, everyone can't win, say the Vince and Fred nine. Besides, you still get shiny, gold trophies for an almost-but-not-quite. The boys are (l. to r., back row) Nick Pezzola, sponsor Vince Merlo, manager Harry Krohn, and players Fazio and Voto; (front row) Cutty, Arats, Domencz, Makrug and Decker. Finals in the league found the Vince and Fredmen losing a double-header 4-3, 3-2 to the Don Gilmore club. Next week they go into the Northern California Managers Association league play.

Panfish Give Anglers Sport Insurance

By KEITH GARDNER

It is doubtful that even Lloyds of London would be so rash as to underwrite "sport insurance" for an expectant trout angler, wishing to guarantee the success of his vacation. Nor is it necessary.

Should the lordly trout prove uncooperative, a little foresight can insure that the fisherman will have something more for his efforts than a few days in the fresh air.

Last weekend, we and a few hundred thousand other California anglers took advantage of the three-day holiday to inaugurate the state's second trout opening in proper style. The May 3 opening, all things considered, is a little too early to give the license-holder much chance, and many of the best lakes and streams don't open 'til May 30.

So last Friday found us making that first cast of the season proper in the waters of Lake Pillsbury, in the Sierra foothills an hour or so out of Ukiah. Pillsbury is noted for its heavy stock of trout, but a boat is generally required to reach their haunts. We applied at the dock and were told that all boats were taken.

This sort of thing can be discouraging, but nothing daunted, we drove back along the lake, picked out a comfortable camp spot, rigged up and waded out a few yards from shore.

The first cast with a small brass spinner brought an immediate strike, which was followed by a short but spirited struggle before an indignant blugill was landed. Expecting trout, we were at first disappointed to find the lake's edge jammed with the lowly panfish.

But anyone who has tasted quick-fried bluegills can hold nothing but the highest opinion of them. In an hour and a half, two of us caught all that five healthy people could eat for dinner. They were not large, but the few trout we saw taken by the boats in deeper water were no larger. And a deep-bellied bluegill carries much more meat on his frame than a slender trout.

Brightly colored and with pugnaciously jutting jaws, they would chase furiously after a spinner, wolf wet flies as fast as they were thrown at them, and occasionally even come up to a dry fly. They fought by turning their broad side at right angles to the line and defying you to lever them out of the water. In short, they were a lot of fun.

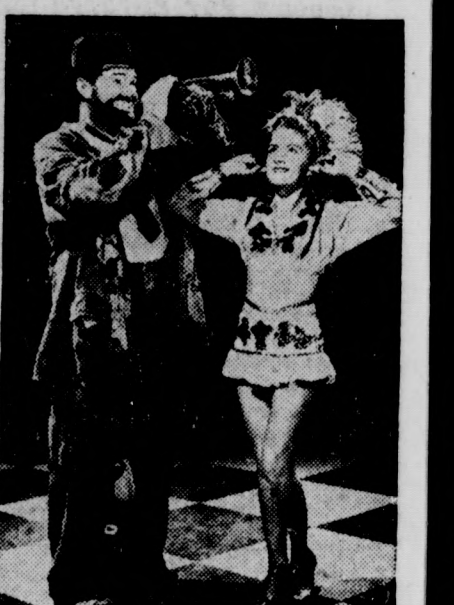

The next day, we drove to the nearby Eel river and caught three trout, about par for the course. But in the evening, while other fishermen were digging out the can opener, we brought in another fryer pan full of bluegills.

Moral: Trout fishing is fun but panfish make good "sport insurance" when the trout aren't having any. Also, a man grows hungry at dinnertime.

Greyhound Agent Robbed By Gunman

A confident armed robber, in a daring daylight raid, relieved the San Mateo Greyhound ticket office of $1,100 Monday morning, after slugging the ticket agent, James Corry, into unconsciousness.

Half a dozen people were near the scene of the crime at 7 a.m. Monday. The robber, a swarthy individual, stuck a gun into Corry's back, told him to open the safe. After the agent had twisted the dial and pulled out the four cash drawers, the robber slugged him with the gun.

RODEO QUEEN. Pretty 18-year-old Pat Taylor reigns over the 35th annual Livermore Rodeo to be held Saturday and Sunday, June 7-8. Billed as the world's fastest, the 2-day Livermore classic provides thrills, spills and action as champion cowboys vie for fame, glory and thousands of dollars in prize money.

Folk Dance Fete Scheduled Sunday

A Regional Folk-Dance Festival sponsored by the San Francisco Park and Recreation Department through the efforts of the San Francisco Folk Dance Council, will be held at Kezar Pavilion on June 8 from 1 to 5 p.m.

Each month a different club is in charge of the program, and this one will be hosted by the Edgewood Folk Dancers and the Hi-Steppers.

There will be several exhibitions during the intermission, and as usual, no charge is made for the affair.

VFW Thanks All Who Made Big Success Of Drive

Lake Merced Post 9921, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Auxiliary, have announced their recent Ruddy Poppy drive was a complete success.

This was possible, according to officials, only through the co-operation and help of local merchants who allowed displays to be placed in their windows, the local residents who so generously donated for the poppies, and THE RECORD for bringing the worthy cause before the public.

Commander Edward Diaz, on the Lake Merced Post, added his thanks to those of the poppy chairman, Joe Menks, and the Auxiliary chairman, Mrs. Anita Woods. The drive was a 100 per cent success, and thus enables the VFW to carry on its program of help to veterans, families of veterans, and veterans' orphans, as well as those men and women still in veteran hospitals.

TRAP-DRUMMER ON THE ROAD

By RIDGELY CUMMINGS

Every once in a while you meet a character whose conversation is so amusing that you wish you had a tape-recorder in your hip pocket so you could preserve it for others.

Such a person is Art Stein, a trap-drummer from New York and points west.

Art kept a group of us convulsed with an account of his adventures this past winter in Miami and Panama City. I tried to memorize some of his expressions and intended to rush right home and put them on paper. But things intervened and now, several days later, all I nourish is a recollection of the bare facts, minus most of his terminology.

These facts I will now recount but if the result is one-tenth as amusing as the original recital I'll be surprised and pleased.

Art is a chunky man with a sizeable nose, sandy hair carelessly brushed back in a crew cut, and a highly mobile face. His facial contortions are responsible for much of his success as a raconteur, for he acts everything out, with gestures and expressions.

It seems that Art went to Panama City this past winter to play in the band in the big new hotel there.

"Have you seen it?" he asked. "It's a gorgeous dump. Cost millions of dollars. Our people in the Canal Zone put up a couple of million and the President of Panama did the same. He spent a year in jail for milking a bank dry so he could finish building it."

One of the musicians in our group asked him the name of the hotel and he mentioned it, but I don't remember if it is called La Crescenta or El Splendor. Something along those lines, something grandiose. Maybe it is named La Grandeur. Apparently it covers acres of ground. Art said the four top floors are sealed off because the prices are so high there aren't enough wealthy tourists down there to fill it.

So Art is telling us about the liquor and the girls and life in the Canal Zone when somebody asks him how about the band, was it a good date.

"Good date?" exclaims Art. "If I'd studied prize-fighting it would have been a fine date."

"We got this bass fiddle player who's six foot and weighs 200, see? He doubles as a vocalist and every night he wants to fight me. One night he doesn't like the way I hit the cymbals. The next night it's my bass beat. He claims I'm trying to ruin his act."

"Everybody is crabbing his act, according to him."

"If the hotel manager comes up to the leader to whisper the name of some request number, this guy walks away from the mike."

"If a waiter rattles two plates at the other end of the dining room, which is as big as a football field he takes it as a personal insult."

"If a couple of customers at a table start talking while he's singing he stops and glares at them until they pipe down. And he's not the only one. Everybody in the band has the jitters or is sore or worried about something but we play out the engagement."

"Then I took a plane to Miami and signed up to play in a hotel there."

"You know how things work in Miami. Everything is a concession. Not only hat checks and washrooms but everything. The bar is a concession and the dining room is a concession. They're starving. People are loaded. They walk around in twenty dollar shirts and this new kind of fur that looks like mink only it's gray and more expensive than mink. But the only time they put their hands in their pockets is to pull out a handkerchief. They don't spend any money."

"I worked three weeks and every night the dining room concessionaire, who was paying our salaries, stands in a corner holding his nose and staring at me." Art illustrated this, crooking his finger around his ample beak and glaring at us.

"Finally he comes over to the leader and asks, 'Ven's he going to sing?' Always you tell me tomorrow night."

"So then I realize for the first time that the leader had sold me as a combo man, a combination drummer and singer. I can't sing a note, as you know."

"I'm surprised, to put it mildly. The leader must have described me as another Milton Berle. Well, I take the cue from what I hear and when the manager asks me when I'm going to sing I say, 'Tomorrow night.'"

"I stall him for a couple of nights but finally I realize the jig is up. The guy's so mad he's going to fire the band."

"So when he asks me again about singing I tell him deadpan serious, 'I'll be ready next week. I'm taking lessons.'"

"On my time he's practising," screams the manager. 'Himmel! I fire you all.'"

"Well, I talked him out of that. I was three days into my fourth week. I told him he could get a new drummer who could croon and it was all right with me, so long as he paid me for the full week."

"You are a gentleman, Mr. Stein," he tells me. "But your leader he has deceived me. Yes, I'll pay you for the full week. And it comes out of his money."

This is just a sample slice of Art's conversation. The more I write the more I see how difficult it is to put verbal humor, where so much depends on the lift of an eyebrow or a contortion of the body, down on paper. But one of these days I'll study shorthand and then I'll be able to give a closer approximation.

Until then, this will have to do for Art Stein, a character who sees the funny side of life and loves to share it with others.

M. W. Reece Named Chest Chairman

Glen O. Smallcomb, President of the Community Chest of San Mateo county, announced today the appointment of M. W. (Bob) Reece, Western Vice President for Reichhold Chemical Company, as chairman of the Chest's development Committee for North County.

Cities represented in the project are San Bruno, Millbrae, Daly City, Colma, South San Francisco, Bayshore and Brisbane.

Reece, an active civic leader, lives with his wife, Jeanne, and 13 year old daughter, Susan, at 341 Aragon Blvd., in San Mateo. He is the immediate Past President of the South San Francisco Manufacturers Association, a member of the South San Francisco Rotary Club and the San Francisco Golf Club.

Assisting Reece on his Committee will be Leon K. Manaster, T. E. Rockford, Donald K. Grant, Jerry Lee, Rod McLellan, E. E. Anderson, Frank Watson, V. E. Robinson and J. J. Canevari.

This Committee is starting now to visit heads of some fifty firms in North County to acquaint them with the Community Chest and the work of its 15 Red Feather Agencies and enlist their support in bringing the Chest story to their employees.

Smallcomb commented that the per capita support among employee groups last fall were far below other communities of similar size and that a well organized and properly directed and executed employee solicitation with top management participation has proven the deciding factor for successful campaigns throughout the country.

Motorists are advised by the National Automobile Club to check their operators' licenses from time to time. The calendar has a way of rolling around and rendering such licenses invalid by putting them out of date.

Trout anglers enjoyed a good opening along the smaller streams in the Georgetown Divide area in El Dorado county, according to the National Automobile Club.

Salmon fishing has been fair during the past week along the Sacramento river in the Glenn county area, reports the National Automobile Club.

Navy Offers Varied Courses

The Navy assure qualified high school graduates of a course in one of many vocational schools upon completion of their basic Recruit Training. In addition to Basic Submarine and Airman schools, there are over 30 other schools available.

Suppose you're interested in Aviation. If you're a high school graduate it's simple. All you do to get into Naval Aviation is to walk into your Navy Recruiting Station and tell them that you want to go to Aviation Fundamentals School. Since only the best men get chosen you will then be given various tests to find out if you're one of the best. If you pass these tests and are between 17 and under 31 years old you will be sent to the Navy's Aviation Fundamentals School as soon as you finish Recruit Training.

If you make good in Fundamentals School the field opens up for you and you get an early start into the Air Age. You'll begin to specialize. For instance, there's the aviation machinist's mate school in which you will first learn the overall principles and practices of all phases of aviation engines.

But Naval Aviation isn't exclusively for high school graduates. It doesn't make any difference how much education you've had — if you can pass the tests you can make the grade.

To Close Fireplace—

MANY old homes have old-fashioned fireplaces which no longer are serviceable. They are a problem, being expensive to remove or put into working condition, and being drafty, dirty, and wasteful of room heat.

There are several ways to close the opening to shut off the draft, but making the closure both functional and attractive is a bit of a trick. The ideal solution is a panel which tightly closes the opening and which may be pleasingly decorated to heighten the interest in an otherwise dull location.

Many leading artists use Tempered Preswood instead of canvas. Its qualities as a painting medium—permanence, absence of grain, durability, non-splintering or cracking—are the same which make it widely used in home remodeling and new construction in residential, commercial, and industrial fields.

A Preswood panel, then, used as a fireplace closure and painted or otherwise decorated combines function and beauty. Instead of a painting by some talented member of the family or friend, the panel may be covered with a blowup of a favorite snapshot. Decalcomanias are another alternative, or the smooth-surfaced material may be painted or enameled.

Since the artistic motif is involved, it's wise to have the panel easily removable so that the scene may be changed from time to time. The simplest way to install the quarter-inch panel for its dual purpose is to fasten a framework of 1 x 2 lumber in the opening and then attach the hardboard with roundheaded screws inserted through drilled holes at the corners and intermediate points.

WHY FAN BELTS BREAK

Most car owners appreciate the fact that a tight fan belt is under a constant and destructive strain, but they often forget that a slipping belt is constantly subjected to excessive wear through friction caused by the rubbing of the slipping pulleys, points out the National Automobile Club. The right adjustment for long belt life lies somewhere between the two extremes. The belt must be examined occasionally in order to maintain this economical adjustment.

SALMON FISHING FAIR

Salmon fishing has been fair during the past week along the Sacramento river in the Glenn county area, reports the National Automobile Club.

HOW TO FIX IT

— By Harold Arnett

HANDY BAIT ADJUSTMENT

THIS RIG IS HANDY BECAUSE IT ADJUSTS THE BAIT TO VARYING DEPTHS BY PERMITTING THE LINE TO SLIDE THROUGH EYE IN HOOK. CORK IS SLIT AND BAIT EMBEDDED IN TOP WITH EYE EXTENDING FROM BOTTOM. LINE IS THREADED THROUGH EYE. WITH A TAUT LINE, THE HOOK WILL BE SUSPENDED OFF THE BOTTOM AND NOT SNAG EASILY.

CONTAINER VENT

AVOID MAKING SMALL-HOLE VENT IN TOP OF METAL CONTAINER FOR POURING CONTENTS BY MAKING A SIMPLE SCREWTYPE VENT. IT CONSISTS OF A WOOD SCREW DRIVEN THROUGH A SMALL WOODEN KNOB WHICH IS TURNED AGAINST A PLIABLE GASKET WHEN SEALED. AT A TWIST OF THE WRIST PROVIDES A VENT OR SEALS.

MONSTER TANK CARRIER TRIES TEST ROAD—This 200,000-pound Army tank retriever was one of the heavy vehicles used on the Maryland Test Road by highway engineers in an experiment which proved that pavement built on gravel will carry weights far greater than the heaviest commercial trucks permitted anywhere.

Motorists today drive smoothly at 50 mph over the site of the road test, despite earlier unofficial reports the road was "ruined" by the specially heavy test trucks which were shuttled back and forth 24 hours a day for six months.

The Highway Research Board's official findings, just released in Washington, D. C., describe how the engineers withheld normal road maintenance so that washouts of clay beneath the pavement would permit cracking they could measure against various weights.

The report shows that the 28 concrete slabs on good soil didn't crack, and the tank retriever was run over this part of the highway to confirm that a properly-built road can support heavy loads.

The inadequate Choptank clay under 85 percent of the test road, it was said, exists nowhere except in a few parts of Maryland and Delaware, but the engineers' findings indicate that pavements built anywhere on poor soils, without adding gravel, require faithful maintenance if rain and weathering are not to weaken them so they cannot bear even ordinary traffic.

The Maryland Test Road was reopened to public use after the state highway department spent $9,918 on it, mostly to fix shoulders and drainage found faulty before the test.

Highway designers and builders are hopeful that the Maryland test and others in prospect will point the way to better highway construction and care. They have learned that a good foundation is a good start, for any road.
